MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

"THE SILVER KING."

This new drama, produced at Wallack's Theatre last night, was seen by a great assembrage, and, at several points, applauded with genuine sympathy. The domestic scenes in it are tender and strong, and these were acted in a vein of deep feelwith fine dramatic expression by Miss Rose Cogalan and Mr. Osmund Tearle. At the point when the wife extorts from her servant the news that her husband is alive, M.ss Coghlan, in particular, exerted her dramatic talent in a really spiendid manner, so that the house resounded with ringing plaudits. To her belonged the enter tumultuous welcome, acted with vigor and exceilent art thronguout the scene of the murder and the sausequent escape; but his remorse speech had the weakness of ellors, and his assumption of the idiot was commonpar. Gilvert gave a beautiful and personation of the old servant, and was specially recalled with veciferous applause. Mr. Wallack responded to a call for Mr. marston, the scene-painter, and made a brief and neat speech. Mr. Leeson, Mr. Flockton and Mr. were notwory fine as rascaus. The scenery was often magnificent, always good. The view of a piace called Sandenburst, by Mr. Goatener, will be hurse, by Mr. Goatener, Will be and color. "The Silver King," viewed for what it contains, is a good play of a bad kind. The theme is that of actual common line, and the treatment distorts the theme WILL WARTON recklessness or all propagility. The premises are duplous, and it is only by making all manuer of impossione events happen in what is called "the mex of time" that the action is wrought out to a result. Nonedy in the piece, aside from the web of adventure or the personality of the performer, is a character, or is interesting it need not be said that the form of drams which deals with superficial incluents is a sharlow susterfuge compared with that which and lyzes character, and shows it under the pressure of experience. The scenes in which Miss Cognina depicts the wife's reazied solicitude and unfaitering anection for her husband when in perh and anguish, and those in which Mr. Tearie displays the famer's fondness are true drama, and rise far above the level of the rest of the piece. "The Saver king" is, in a far off way, to "The licket of Leave It undonotedly will have a rus, and will meet with far more success than, in-trussically, it deserves. The mood of public sate is pecuniar just now, and mach staff obtains accep-sace that intencertal caste most righteously re-

Philharmonic concert (this week) includes the Seventh Symphony of Beethoven, Schumann's "Manfred" overture, the Screnade in D of Robert Fuchs, and Bach's Suite in D. Miss Taursby will sing a Händel scena and an aria of Spoar. At the succeding concert, on March 3, the programme will be Gounou's "Redemption."

At the Casmo concert this evening Mrs. Helen Norman will sing songs of Mr. Sullivan; Miss Hattle Scheil, Eckert's "Echo Song"; Mr. W. T. Carleton, "The Village Biacksmith "; and Mr. Charles Fritsch, songs by Schubert. The orchestra will play selections from "Le Propaète," "Les Huguenots," "La Mascotte," "Mignon," "The Merry War," etc.

Edmund Neupert will make his first appearance in New-York in chamber music, playing the planoforte part in Brahms's new trie in C major (op. 87). This trie is an absolute novelty, having been given for the first time in Engiana only last Thursday evening, at Messre. Laistner and Manr's Trio Concert at the Royal Academy. Mr. Neupert will also play Liezt's "Faust valuer." Mr. Ar-nold will play a romance of Svendsen, and Sarasate's "Faust" fantasie.

At the Bijou Opera House the comic opera of "Virginia" maintains its place and pleases a throng of spectators, night after night. Its continuance here for some time may be anticipated.

At the Grand Opera House Mr. Raymond has just ended an engagement of two weeks, as Major Bob, in "Paradise," and this stage will now be occupied by Miss Annie Pixley, in the character of M'liss.

At the Thalia Theatre Mr. Barnay, who reappeared on Friday, has given two performances of Narcisse, and has repeated Waldemar. His engagement

At Henderson's Standard Theatre the opera of "lolanthe" is lannehed upon a gay and seemingly a long career in the public favor. Record has already been made here of recent changes in the cast.

At Haverly's Theatre, Mr. J. K. Emmet is performing, in his well-known character of Fritz. This exous and mirthful German, with his broken English bad singing, is seen to disport "Among the Gyp-and crowds of spectators continually behold him.

At the Fifth avenue Theatre Miss Mary Anderson enters upon the taird week of her engagement, and during this she will be seen as Parthenia, Juliet and Bianca. Her acting has attracted much though ful attention and aroused public enthusiam.

At Niblo's Garden melodrama prevails, in the shape of "The Black Flag," in whon Mr. E. F. Therne, Mr. N. C. Goodwin, Miss Weathersby and others participate. And at the Windsor Theatre Mr. John A. Stevens may be seen, in his melodramatic speciaclo called "Passion"s Slave."

At the Opera House of the San Francisco Minerels a diversified programme of sentimental and tomic songs, farces, dances, and colloquies, may be enjoyed; and as the company engaged is a thoroughly good one, this medley of entertainment is given in an able and the cold

At the Turf Club Theatre Miss Helen Bancroft ended her season of one week, as Julia, last night. During Lent (which begins on February 7), Mr. Sidney Woollett will give a series of Morning Recitals, at this theatre, and Mr. George Riddle will likewise give enter-tainments here of a dramatic and literary character.

At Wallack's Theatre Mr. Wallack ended his short engagement yesterday, at the matinee. He has given fourteen performances of Chalcote, in "Ours," and eleven performances of Marlowe, in " she Stoops to Conquer," and he has acted these parts with incessant and admating brilliancy. Last night "The Silver King" was produced at Wallack's Theatre, and this remains

At the Theatre Comique the comical, grotesque, rough and tumble play of "McBoriey's Infla-tion" has drawn crowded houses, all along, and this piece will, doubtless, be kept upon the stage for many nights to come. It is exceedingly cheerful and amusing, and Mr. Hart and Mr. Harrigan are seen in it in two contrasted types of Irish character, perfect as photographs, and irresistibly laughable, "McSorley's Inflation," like "Squatter Sovereignty," is a remarkable type of the utility of doing a common thing in an uncommon manner.

At the Union Square Theatre "A Parisian Romance" is nightly acted to a crowded house, and undoubtedly it will hold the stage for the remainder of the season. A significant moral is suggested by the recent experience of this theatre. The spirit of "The recent experience of this theatre. The spirit of "The Rantzaus" was goodness; and the play proved a comparative failure. The spirit of "A Parisian Romance" is evil, and this piece proves a brilliant success. The former was much the better play—as to subject, construction and handling of human character. But, evidently, there is a vitality in pictures of the evil passions of man, that the presentment of his affections is seldem able to rival. The brilliant stage pictures and the excellent acting in "A Parisian Romance" are the

THE ARTISTS' FUND SOCIETY.

TWENTY-THIRD ANNUAL EXHIBITION. There is always a sense of comfortable assurance in visiting the exhibitions of the Artists' Fund Society, for our nerves are never likely to be disturbed by any unexpected shocks or startling surprises. But although these exhibitions are wont to be on the same modest plane, they are characterized-especially at the evening private view-by a Christmas-like spirit of peace and good-will toward all mankind which might with advantage be more widely diffused. The exhibitions are held to maintain an excellent system of mutual insurance, and the artists who contribute usually do so be-cause they prefer to sign a check with a brush rather than a pen, and to make drafts upon their color tubes rather than their bankers. And so he who would approach the exhibition in a censorious and fretful spirit ready to carp at the non-approximation to his ideal standard, would come totally misapprehending the alms and mevitable limitations of the society. Yet it must be acknowledged that among the 108 pictures which were displayed at the Kirby Galleries last night there are more of strong, enduring interest than in pre-vious years. The new blood which the society has infused into its veins is making itself felt. Here is Thomas Hovenden with his "Brittany Image-Seller," a charming little study of figures against a gray stone wall, painted with all Mr. Hovenden's faithfulness and sincerity, and thoroughly artistic in its mellow tones and pictorial composition. Then our sympathies are drawn to Millet's "Norman Fisherboy," handsome, sleepy little tellow, whose white blouse, red tasselled cap and black curiy hair make a pretty combination, while we could wish the boy a softer pillow than a coil of rope, and also that the artist had bestowed more care upon the modelling and drawing of his face. Mr. Millet is a cosmodelling and drawing of his face. Ar. Attice is a cos-mopolite, and invites us to join him in a Turkish café, but we prefer the Fisherboy with his creel of gleaming macketel for a companion. Mr. Dielman still remains tree to his Maryland gardens and negro studies. Let us hope that the very green grape arbor which has so often risen up and "would not down" will be effectually laid at the forthcoming sale, and the summer idlers may no longer display their indolence in public. Bruce Crane sends two examples of cleverish work, one "Gesaug uer Parzen," for six-part chorus and orenestra, prominent in which is a yellow country road bordered with grasses which are dotted with daisies, like snowwith grasses which are dotted with daisies, like snow-flakes, and by trees. Then we come to an admirable little study, which is interesting to compare with Mr. Hovenden's "Image-Seller." This is D. Maitland Armstrong's "Baker's Shop, Pont Aven, Brittany." A Beckwith's toilet was black horseman has paused at the door, his white steed lending the stronger accentuation needed by the grayish wall.

A peasant woman stands to the doorway, another sits just without the threshhold, and on a shelf in front are ranged the great dusky crusty loaves. Douglas Volk reappears with his snow scenes and delicate forlors maiden, whose sweet grace always wins her sympathy. This time she is far from being a Puritan. It is the old tale of the grasshopper and the ant. Poor Cigale; the stern winter chills her dainty limbs one by Sendert. The ordered will play selections from "be Fropuble," "Les Huguenotes, "La Mascotte," "It also a miner revers have faded. Since a significant tree far Mignon," "The Merry war," etc.

The concert of Mille. Honks de Ravasz occurs of monday evening at Cinckering Hail. The programme contains no less than two Last numbers, and includes the Back organ Toccats and Fugues arranged for pump forte by Tassig, M. BICYCLISTS CARRIED OFF TO BED.

The people who visited the American Institute at Sixty-third-st. and Third-ave last night to see the conclusion of the bicycle tournament hardly got the their money. The two unfortunate persons, who were dragging themselves round the track in the valuattempt to "cut the record," dropped off their bleycles by mutual consent at half past 8 into the arms of their friends and were promptly carried off to bed. The score stood: Young, of Boston, 257 miles; Morgan, 249. Wilson had leit the track three hours before with a score of 217 miles, and Woodsade had been put to bed, completely broken down, early in the afternoon with 193 miles to his credit. The champion, Prince, was expected to give an exhibition last night, but he did not appear. Mace and Slade, who were to give the prizes, did not appear either. appear. # THE WEEK IN SOCIETY.

LORD LORNE IN WASHINGTON.

ENTERTAINED AT BREAKFAST AND DINNER, GUEST OF COLONEL TOURTELETTE AND OF THE PRESIDENT-A RECEPTION BY THE CHINESE [BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Colonel Tourtelotte gave breakfast to-day to the Marquis of Lorne. The breakfast was served at Chamberlain's. Among the guests were the British Minister, General Sherman, General Hazen and Commissioner Loring.

Mrs. McEltoy held a reception at the White House this afternoon, assisted by Miss McElroy and

Mrs. Davis, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State. The red, blue and green parlors, with the corridor, were opened and lighted by the chandeliers. There was a large attendance of ladies, but few gentlemen were present, and at no time were the rooms overcrowded. Colonel Rockwell made the presentations. The President was not present. A few moments before the reception closed the British Minister came in with the Marquis of Lorne and the gentlemen of his suite and the party were presented, remaining some time in conversation with the ladies.

Mrs. and Miss McCulloch, wife and daughter of ex-Secretary McCulloch, gave a tea to-day from 4 to 7 to a large number of invited guests.

The President gave a dinner this evening in honor of the Governor-General of Canada. The floral decorations were elaborate, those of the table being marked by suggestive designs, that were very beautiful and effective. A long canoe formed the centre piece of red and wnite carnations massed on the sides, and the boat filled with roses, lilies of the valley and smilar. This rested on a mirror, bordered with callas and ferns. At either end were small Canada sleighs composed of white carnations and red tulips, while at the ends of the table were snow shoes, a patch of white carnations and red tulips. Covers were laid for thirty-eight. At a quarter before 8 o'clock the President led the way to the dining-room, with Mrs. Freling-huysen who sat on the right. They were followed by the Secretary of War and Mrs. Keifer, Colonel DeWinton and Miss Frelinghuysen, Edwards Pierrepont and Mrs. Bigelow Lawrence, Representative Wadsworth, Private Secretary Phillips and Miss Raenel Sherman, Mr. Beckworth, of New-York, and Mrs. John Davis, Senator Hale and Miss McElroy, Senator Cameron, of Penn., and Mrs. Pendleton, Chief Justice Waite and Mrs. Cameron, the British Minister and Mrs. McElroy, the Marquis of Lorne and Miss West, Speaker Keifer and Mrs. Hale, W. W. Story and Mrs. Wadsworth, General Sherman, Senator Pendleton and Miss Beckworth, Mr. Bozet, Assistant Secretary of State Davis, Admiral Porter and Mrs. Beckworth, George Bancroft and Mrs. Story, Senator David Davis and Mrs. Waite.

Miss West's toilet was pale blue satin trained dress with valenciennes trimmings, low corsage and pearl ornaments. Mrs. Waite were belietrope satin with ruches of English violets and point lace. Mrs. Cameron's toilet was a white satin train, lace trimmings, brocaded waist, low, with pearl necklace.

Mrs. Frelinghnysen wore a black satin train, the front of silver brocace, Mechlin lace, and hair dressed with white ostrich tips. Mrs. Keifer wore electric bine silk and brocade, with point lace Miss Frelinghuysen wore white corded slik with embroidered flounces and white feather trimmings. Mrs. Story's toilet was a dark green velved trained dress with iridescent trimming, low corsage and ornaments of old Florentine fewelry, set with diamonds and pearls.

Mrs. Wadsworth were white brocade train, the front concealed with flounces of point lace, low cor-age and diamends, train, with front of embossed velvet, Brussels lace, low corsage and diamonds. Mrs. Hale's toilet was pale pink satin train, the front of pearl satin, brocaded with roses, point lace triminings, low corsage, with ornaments of diamonds and pearls. Mrs. McElroy's toilet was a soft gray satin, with fringe McElroy's tollet was a soft gray satin, with fringe trimmings and point lace. Miss Beckwith wore a white brocade trained dress, trimmed with white English creps, draped with spray of myrtle, low corsage and necklace of pearls.

Mrs. Davis wore white brocade and white embossed velvet, square corsage and diamonds. Miss McElroy's tollet was of cardinal silk and valenciennes, with natural flowers. Mrs. Lawrence wore white satin and point lace, low corsage and pearl organisms.

Higgins gave an elegant reception, the first of two, on Monday from 3 to 6, at No. 137 Fifth-ave. Mrs. F. N. Lawrence and her attractive daughters also received at tue New-York Hotel. Mrs. Jostah Macy, jr., opened her house, No. 18 West Fifty-third-st. The usual Monday receptions went on for the day, and then in the evening came several dinners. Mrs. William Astor gave a dit ner of twenty covers, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Kernochan, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Howland, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Bronson, Mrs. Griswold Gray and Miss Hewitt being amongst the guests, after which all drove to Delmonico's to enjoy the Cutting ball. That was really a superb triumph, as the beauty of the decorations transformed those somewhat monotonous rooms into fairy-land. The entire first floor was saved for the guests and the dressing rooms were in the third story. Colonel Delancey Kane entered the field again as a lender of the german, dancing with Miss Cutting, who inherits her mother's beauty, and on that occasion tooked remarkably well. The company was of course most fashionable, and that well-known courtesy and half century of social distinction are not found wanting in its present most agreeable representatives.

Tuesday found the gay world at work again. The most agreeable receptions were the single ones of Mrs. Kingsland, who threw open the fine old double house on dwellers on narrow lets, and received there a most agreeable company, and Mrs. Townsend, who had a delightful tea. Mrs. J. Lawrence Smith and her daughters tertained a number of visitors. Mrs. Van Rensselaer Mrs. Delancey Kane gave a dinner on Tuesday evening Mrs. George Bolton Alicy gave a large reception for her daughter, Mrs. E. M. Taloot, who has just returned from a wedding tour; Miss Brinckerhoff and Miss Neil of Baltimere, the Misses Binase and the Misses Turnbull were among the guests. Mrs. Dr. Emmet gave a dance ing party, at which were present all the rosebuds and a large number of the dancing men. Miss Rosina Emmet and Miss Annie Cunard were also present. In the evening the Nineteenth Century Cluby had the pleasure of hearing Mrs. Julia Ward Howe read a fine paper on . Emerson and Longfeliow. Mr. Frederick A. Conkling, Mr. Wakeman and the Rev. Mr. Schermerhorn spoke, and there were present Mrs. Wolsey, Mr. Whitehouse, Mrs. Paran Misses Nevins, Mr. and Mrs. Mott, Mr. E. T. Pottor, Mr.

Bronson Murray, Mrs. Parton and many others, Wednesday was again cold and gloomy, but a ladies' luncheon at Mrs. George Baker's broke the gloom in Madison-ave. Mrs. R. H. L. Townsend received a number of guests. Mrs. Oscar Livingston's reception was de ferred on account of a death in Mr. Livingston's family; Mrs. Paul Thébaud gave the first of two receptions ; Mr. Stacey Clarke gave a very pretty party in his bachelor apartments, Mrs. Mathews the mother of Mrs. Corneilus Vanderbilt), Mrs. Remsen and Mrs. Gthon receiving for him, and the Misses Webb, the Misses Remsen, Miss Garrettson, and Mr. Maurice Minton being among the guests. A wedding of unusual interest to the old Knickerbooker society occurred at the Madison Square Presbyterian Church. The bridegroom, Clarence R. Van Benthuysen, is an Albanian; the bride was Miss Harriet Emerson Latting, a daughter of Mr. J. J. Latting; Mr. Charles T. Van Santvoord was best man. Rarely does so much rich old Dutch blood assert itself in these powerful Westerner have so invaded the city of Heinrich Hudson. Mr. John R. Suydam, of New-York, was also married on Wednesday afternoon, at Philadelphia, to Miss Harriet Penrose Cochran. Mrs. Henry Clews re-ceived a number of Wednesday visits at her beautiful new house, No. 14 West Fortleth-st. Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Davis gave a large reception at No. 24 West Tenthst. Mrs. Francis R. Rives gave a large dinner, and a

On Thursday, at No. 16 West Forty-ninth-st., Mrs. John D. Wing threw open her beautiful house, and a large number of guests partook of her hospitality; among them were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Turnure, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Kernochan, Mr. and Mrs. Ruther ford, Lawrence Turnure, Mr. and Mrs. Vail, Mr. and Mr. and Mrs. Tailer. Mr. and Mrs. Shepard gave a dinner in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Cutting, Mr. and Mrs. Day and Mrs. Sutton also gave large din-ners. Mrs. Robert Goelet gave a small dinner. The second Cotilion Ball came off at Delmonico's in the even-ing; those dreadful yellow shade were again used. The Iselin, Mrs. Butler Duncan, Mrs. Burratt Hoffman, Mrs. Emmet, Mrs. Schuyler, Mrs. Turnbull, Mrs. Bunsen, Mrs. Gray, and Mrs. Caapman. There is a general feel-ing of disappointment in regard to these balls, and the effort to make the teas a success has falled signally.

The Charity Ball, despised of fashion but beloved by the people, was singularly brilliant. There were many well-known and distinguished persons present, and the ladica' toilots were unusually handsome. The new president, Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, brings to his posi-tion a great deal of personal popularity and a universal good feeling. The music was admirable, the floor in good condit or, and dancing went on with great spirit until 2 o'clock. It is a thousand pities that no better. place for supper exists than the ceilar of the Academy of Music. Mr. and Mrs. Charles de Rhum received from 4 to 7 on Thursday afternoon. Miss Helen Suydam was married to the young widower, Mr. Robert Fulton Cutting, at St. Bartholomew's Church very quietly. Mrs. Charles Lanier gave a dinner for her daughter, Miss Fanny Lanier, one of the débutantes, on Thursday afternoon.

On Friday the weather cleared in time for the teas Mrs. Wells, of No. 30 West Thirty-first-st., received a large number of visits, as did Mrs. Sherwood, Mrs. Hitchcock, Mrs. Alfred Roosevelt, Mrs. Edward Cooper, Mrs. Westervelt, Mrs. Harriott and Mrs. Dorsheimer. Mrs. James M. Waterbury gave a dancing party in the evening at her residence in Fifth-ave. A small attendance greated the Cotillon managers at their tea at Delmonico's. Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew gave a dinner at her

On Saturday, skies being still gloomy, society, undismayed, paid visits to Mrs. J. Alfred Davenport, Mrs. F. H. Salius, and Mrs. J. H. Brown, of No. 39 West Forty-seventh-st. All were crowded receptions, for it being the last Saturday of this brilliant social January, the visits were necessarily many. Mrs. Clarence Cary held the first of two recepand Mrs. Winthrop matronized the dancing class at the house of Miss Sands.

The present week will be a crowded one. Miss Ward's dancing class comes on Monday evening; Mrs. Griswold Gray gives a reception; the wedding of Mr. Amory Hodges to Miss Alice Woodward will b solemnized at the Unitarian church of Dr. Robert Collyer, with a reception afterward at the house of the bride's mother, Mrs. Woodward, in Gramercy Park. The wedding of Miss Wigham to Mr. Clark will occur on Jan-Ladies' Assembly at Delmonico's comes on Thursday; there will be an evening reception at the house of Mrs. George Kemp, and a performance of the little play written by Mrs. Eurton N. Harrison, called "Four o'clock Tea," at Mr. Howard Potter's. Other entertainments are a Tuesday evening reception at the house of Mr. Charles H. Russell, No. 417 Fifth-ave., the Minuet Club ball at Mrs. Maunsell Schieffelin's, the Thursday Evening Club, at Mrs. W. E. Dodge, jr.'s, the wedding of Miss Shippen to Mr. Hilborne Roosevelt, the Children's Carni-

He Right I" at the Academy of Music.

To-morrow evening there will be a rehearwal of the minuet at Mrs. Clarence Pell's; Mrs. Edwin D. Morgan jr., will give a small german on Friday evening; dinners will be given by Mrs. William Assor, Mrs. John A. Rob-inson, Mrs. Edward Cooper, Mrs. J. F. Kernochan, and

Monday, February 5; Mrs. General Grant will receive Tuesdays, January 30 and February 6; Mrs. Evarts receives on Wednesdays; Mrs. C. V. and her death ensuing the same evening. Two deaths have occurred within the week calculated to shock a large circle of friends-the death of Dr. Georga a desire, feeblyjexpressed, that he might record his dying sensations for the benefit of science; and the death of Mr. A. Gordon Hamersley, so long a familiar figure on our streets. Mr. Hamersley had been a singularly hand some mas in youth, and he and his beautiful wife (Miss New-York as a stately couple. For many years Mr. Hamersley was a man of fashion, a diner out, distin tinguished for the fertility of his mind and for his gifts as a talker. Of late ill health had kept him out of society; he too, died of pneumonia. Mrs. Burtou N. Harrison bad a small musicale on Thursday last, and many ladies are proposing musical afternoons and evenings for the future. They should considerately wait until after Lent, for this zealous chronicle cannot reach half of the entertainments now in progress. With the lunches, the little dinners, the evenings at home, the thousand and one teas, the gayety of the first month of 1883 has been overwhelming. The trustees of the Metropolitan Museum of Art have issued an elegantly engraved invitation to the friends of that institution to hear Professor Charles Ellot Norton, of Cambridge, president of the Archielogical Institute, 10. After the lecture a supper will be given to Professor Norton, to which a few prominent ladies and gen-

STRIKERS GROWING TIRED.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.] FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 27 .- Up to the present time there has been no change in the strike among the iron workers at Somerset, and both mills are still closed; but it is more than probable that there will be a change before long. The strikers are beginning to weaken and are indirectly making over tures to the manufacturers to regain their places. The workmen after a strike of two weeks have concluded that there is no apparent two weeks have concluded that there is no apparent prospect of a chance in the iron market which would favor a continuance of hostilities. A part of the workmen have already signified their intention of returning to work, but the more obstinate class still claim that it is a just cause to oppose the manufacturers in reducing wares. The employers will start the works as soon as possible and permit those who are willing to return to their places. Much difficulty will be encountered, however, as those who refuse to submit are mostly puddiers, and the supply of material on hand is limited. The manufacturers will endeavor to secure new help instead of those who wish to prolong the strike, which is now virtually ended.

A LOSS OF $200,000.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Jan. 27 .- A disastrous fire courred at Wincoski this morning under the following circumstances:

A car ran off the track at Winooski this morning and came into collision with another car loaded with kerosene oil.
